About the list

The bottles on the list are placed within categories of art styles, using texture and color as ways to explain their profiles. That being said, there is a Table of Contents below if you are looking for something specific. Please feel comfortable asking questions or seeking guidance!

The spices and flavors of the menu are held in strong consideration when choosing these bottles. Within any style you're in the mood for we can find a great pairing with the menu.

We take the responsibility of telling the stories of the producers and the regions they are in seriously. Many of the people behind the bottles on the list humbly want nothing more than for you to have fun drinking their wines and enjoy them on the table with friends.

Whether this will be your first bottle or if you've lost count, if you want to spend $45 or $2500, we're excited to help you find something you'll love.

The background of the slide is a vertical rectangular painting in an Impressionist style. It features a complex, textured composition of colors, primarily blues, whites, and earthy tones like ochre and brown. The brushstrokes are visible and varied in direction, creating a sense of movement and light. The overall effect is that of a shimmering, atmospheric scene, possibly a landscape or a seascape, rendered with soft, dappled light.

Impressionism

Softly-Textured White, Rosé & Red Wine

Impressionist painters used distinct brushstrokes of opaque paint, blurring details to create unmistakable movement, light, and life on the canvas

Craft

Wines with a very unique style and sense of place, often involving the use of ancient winemaking methods

In the wake of the Industrial Revolution, the Arts and Crafts movement was an attempt to highlight the value of handmade goods in an increasingly mass-produced market. The movement was utilized by female artists to elevate the public's view on domestic crafts, such as sewing, embroidery, and needlework to a level of "high art"
